DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Aoto et al.

Aoto et al. discloses a liquid crystal projector comprising:

a beamsplitter (3) for separating light of a first color from the lights of second and third colors;

a first reflective LCD (DB) for rotating the plane of polarization of the first color supplied from a first PBS (4);

second and third reflective LCD's (DG, DR) for rotating the plane of polarization of second and third color lights being supplied lights from a second PBS (9);

a first color selector (6) for rotating the polarization of one of the second and third color lights;

a dichroic prism (5) for outputting the polarized lights from the three LCD's.

3. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Chuang et al.

Chuang (6,384,972) discloses a liquid crystal projector comprising:

Art Unit: 2851

a beamsplitter (6) for separating light of a first color from the lights of second and third colors;

a first reflective LCD (91) for rotating the plane of polarization of the first color supplied from a first PBS (71);

second and third reflective LCD's (92, 93) for rotating the plane of polarization of second and third color lights being supplied lights from a second PBS (72);

a first color selector (981) for rotating the polarization of one of the second and third color lights;

a second color selector (82) for rotating the polarization of one of the second and third color lights;

a third PBS (73) for outputting all the lights to a projecting lens (40).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kurematsu et al.

Kurematsu et al. (5,267,029) discloses a liquid crystal projector comprising:

a beamsplitting device (7, 11) for supplying s polarized lights of red, green, and blue;

Art Unit: 2851

a first transmission liquid crystal panel (8) for modulating light of the first color (red) by rotating the polarization;

a second transmission liquid crystal panel (6) for modulating light of the second color (green) by rotating the polarization;

a third transmission liquid crystal panel (8) for modulating light of the third color (blue) by rotating the polarization; and a beam combining mechanism for combining the modulated colors comprising:

a dichroic mirror for combining lights of two colors;

a reflective mirror for redirecting light of a third color;

a PBS for combining all three color lights.

Kurematsu et al. does not teach the use of a dichroic prism rather than a dichroic mirror at (15), the use of a PBS for reflective mirror (14), or the particular order of color combination.

Figure 1 of Kurematsu et al. teach the use of a PBS (3) for redirection along an optical path similar to that in figure 2. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to substitute a PBS for a reflection mirror in order to eliminate any residual polarization components. It further would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to substitute a dichroic prism for the dichroic mirror (15) because both are known equivalent structures with which to reflect certain color components while transmitting others, as seen by the use of dichroic prism (31) in figure 5. The particular order of color separation would have been obvious to one skilled in the art because the structure will operate with any order of separation.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 3-4, 8, 10-11 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

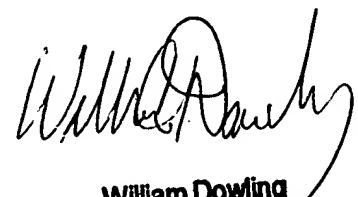

7. Claims 5-6 are allowed.
